

Pilot Projects

We partner with NACCHO on pilot projects where health departments and CBOs collaboratively design, implement, and evaluate innovative and sustainable approaches to the COVID-19 pandemic in RIM communities.

Technical Assistance

We strengthen connections and information sharing between community-based organizations and health departments, and share practical lessons-learned with those that are facing challenges.

We've gotten the tools, resources and support we need to research, develop and disseminate information and educational materials that will go out to our refugee communities in Dallas and beyond.

Cultural competence is such an important part of messaging and educational materials, and our efforts to get these materials right seem to really be paying off.

I am a community health worker and these templates are very helpful. I will be sharing these ideas and templates with our Health Educators who do classes for diabetes and other health concerns.
